THE BRIDGE

The body of a dead woman is found on the Øresund Bridge between Sweden and Denmark, at exactly the spot that marks the border between the two countries. What is really macabre, however, is that the body consists of two different halves: the top part is from a Swedish politician, and the bottom part from a Danish prostitute. Murder across borders – a mystery that must be solved by a police team from two countries.

A horrifying sight awaits police officers Martin Rohde of Denmark and Saga Norén of Sweden as they arrive at the crime scene: the two victims were expertly cut in half and joined together. This double murder comes with a message, and the perpetrator is most likely a serial killer. Just as the bi-national team takes up its work, the killer makes contact with a journalist ...

The murderer is a “moral terrorist” who intends to methodically expose truths that he feels are ignored by the public in its daily life. Through the intermediary of the young journalist, he spreads his message to society at large via newspapers, TV and the Internet. With daunting skill and professionalism, he always stays one step ahead of the police in what gradually becomes a dramatic manhunt throughout the entire Øresund region. Martin, a laid-back Danish family man, and Saga, a driven Swedish single with a focus on facts rather than on empathy, know that their opponent is extremely intelligent – and extremely dangerous.
